

Logical Security Announces Partnership with CCCure.org and Clement Dupuis

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 21, 2009 – Shon Harris and Logical Security, the leader in CISSP training, have announced a partnership with the leading portal for CISSP and SSCP exam preparation and practice materials, CCCure.org, and its owner Clement Dupuis. This exclusive partnership provides CISSP/SSCP candidates top-notch training materials from two of the industry's most respected CISSPs.

Dupuis joins Shon Harris and the rest of the Logical Security team as a full-time trainer and content developer. "Shon and I have worked independently for years, each of us earning respect from peers in the industry. It's about time we join forces and put our brains together to develop the best IT training material that can be found," said Dupuis.

With 26 years of experience in information security, Dupuis is recognized around the world as one of the top instructors of SSCP and CISSP material, and is regarded as a leader and mentor in the industry. He continually contributes to the community and its knowledge through his study guide portal CCCure.org. "Clement cares a lot about students and the industry as a whole. He makes himself available outside of class and is known for building relationships with students that extend beyond exam day," says Harris. "He shares the Logical Security attitude that we serve the students – not the other way around."

Hundreds of thousands of CISSP candidates have trusted Logical Security as their partner in IT security training. Harris, best-selling author of CISSP All-in-One Exam Guide, has developed comprehensive courses to help companies acquire the skills to confront and combat today's complex security and compliance issues. In the process of creating her CISSP information security training courses and boot camps, she created a new teaching methodology designed to instill in-depth knowledge. And now students can access the knowledge and experience of not just one industry leader but two, as Harris and Dupuis work together to raise the bar even higher on security training.

About Shon Harris and Logical Security

Shon Harris is the best-selling author of CISSP All-in-One Exam Guide and president of IT training company Logical Security. Shon and the Logical Security team are dedicated to developing useful programs and tools that help consulting companies, internal security groups, government agencies, CISSP technicians, and others carry out the best risk assessment and analysis methodologies. Logical Security is committed to being a leader and visionary in the movement to elevate information security from a black art to a disciplined, quantitative science and become a more established, coherent, and dependable industry.

About Clement Dupuis and CCCure.org

Clement Dupuis is a Senior Computer Security Analyst and the Lead Security Instructor for Logical Security, where he supervises, contributes to, and performs delivery of security-related classes.

Previously, Clement taught for Vigilar Intense School, the Canadian Department of Defense, and SANS Institute. His CISSP/SSCP portal, CCCure.org, was rated the best place to get exam crams and practice quizzes for the CISSP certification by Information Security magazine.

Press Contact: